

The German protectorate of Tsingtau in China was fortified from 1902 onward. The landfront in the east was defended by five infantry works with a series of field gun batteries and machine gun positions. The southern seafront was provided with naval batteries along the shore, while on the central Bismarckberg a 28-cm howitzer battery commanded the peninsula and its surrounding waters.